Dazed and confused?

March 4, 2009 : Members of the Ottawa Real Estate Board sold 787 residential properties in February through the Board's Multiple Listing Service® system compared with 980 in February 2008, a decrease of 19.7 per cent. There were 530 sales in January 2009.

"What I am hearing from fellow REALTORS® is that many buyers are out there looking, but seem nervous about making offers. They're confused by what they've been reading and hearing about the state of the real estate market. The fact is, although sales and prices have both declined here in Ottawa, they have remained relatively steady when compared with the sharp decreases seen in other parts of Canada," said Board President Rick Snell.

"Ottawa's resale housing market is balanced, which offers opportunities for both sellers and buyers, especially first-time buyers," Snell added. "More competitively-priced homes combined with current low interest rates make it a fantastic time for first-time buyers to get into the market."
